INSPIRATION

GAME INSPIRATION

In designing this card game, I drew inspiration from the competitive atmosphere of Hell's Kitchen, the cooperative mechanics of Overcooked, and the resource strategies of Monopoly. Based on research into their popularity, I combined these elements to create a unique card game experience.

Overcooked

The Overcooked series is a party game that emphasizes multiplayer cooperation and chaotic pacing. Its Steam version has sold over one million copies, with the Switch and other console editions also achieving significant success. Daily concurrent players have peaked in the thousands, while the long-term active player base typically ranges from several hundred to over a thousand. The game appeals strongly to families, party-goers, and casual players, and its cartoonish style and low entry barrier attract audiences across all age groups. Its spread is primarily driven by digital store sales and further amplified through streaming and video platforms like Twitch and YouTube, where its hilarious, chaotic multiplayer moments are especially well-suited for content sharing.

Hell's Kitchen

Hell's Kitchen is a reality show centered on cooking competitions and dramatic conflicts, with each episode in the U.S. typically drawing around 1.8 to 2.1 million viewers. Its core audience consists of 18–49-year-olds who enjoy reality TV and culinary battles. The program builds its initial viewership through television broadcasts and extends its popularity via secondary dissemination on platforms like YouTube, TikTok, and Weibo, where social media discussions amplify its buzz and strengthen fan engagement.

Monopoly

Monopoly, as a classic board game, has sold over 275 million physical copies since its debut, becoming a staple for families and social gatherings across generations. Its mobile spinoff Monopoly Go achieved around 2 billion USD in revenue within just ten months of launch, showcasing remarkable monetization power and user penetration. The game's audience is extremely broad, ranging from family players at gatherings to casual mobile gamers. Its distribution channels span traditional retail and offline play to app stores and large-scale digital marketing campaigns, making it not only a globally recognized classic brand but also a franchise that remains relevant and popular through new media.

GAME FLOW AND MECHANICS

Game Overview

Chef King Competition is a light-to-medium strategy card game that combines Monopoly-style map movement with resource-based point battles. Players take on the roles of top chefs navigating a culinary arena. As they move around a large game board, they collect ingredient cards such as vegetables, meat, eggs, and seasonings. By stopping at kitchen spaces on the map, they can cook dishes to earn dish points. Players may also challenge others to win their resources. The ultimate goal is to become the Chef King with the highest score.

This page mainly introduces the classification of my cards. This column features the core cards of the game — the resource cards — which are divided into four types: Meat, Eggs, Vegetables, and Seasonings. Players can exchange their cards at the Farmers' Market tile, invest by spending one card at the corresponding tile, or cook dishes at the Kitchen tile by consuming the required resources to obtain Dish cards.

EVENT CARD

THE REST OF THE ELEMENTS

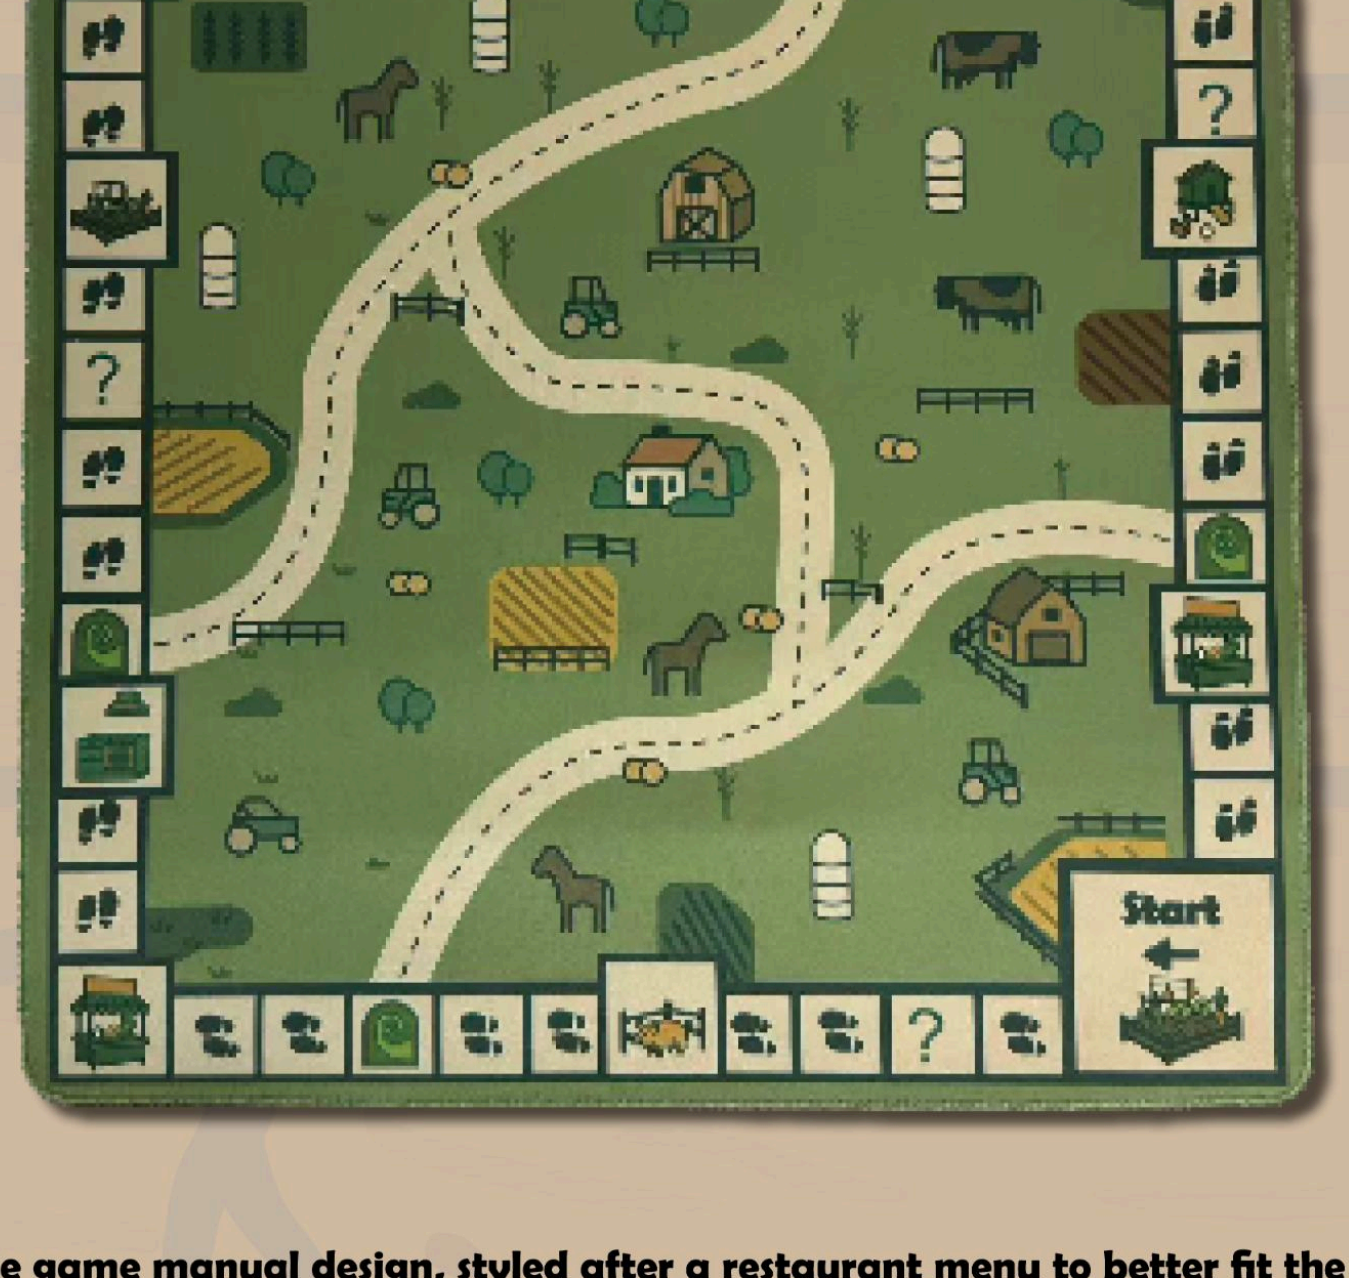
The left side of this page showcases the game map design, inspired by American farm environments and the classic board game Monopoly. The map consists of various tiles, including vegetable gardens, pastures, chicken coops, kitchens, farmers' markets, legendary routes, and event spaces. Players trigger different effects depending on the tile they land on, enriching the game's strategy and experience.



On the right side is the game manual design, styled after a restaurant menu to better fit the game's theme. The manual includes background information, card types, map descriptions, and gameplay rules, aiming to help players quickly understand and easily get started with the game.

USER EXPERIENCE、QUESTIONNAIRE SURVEY AND FUTURE PROSPECTS

USER EXPERIENCE AND QUESTION SURVEY

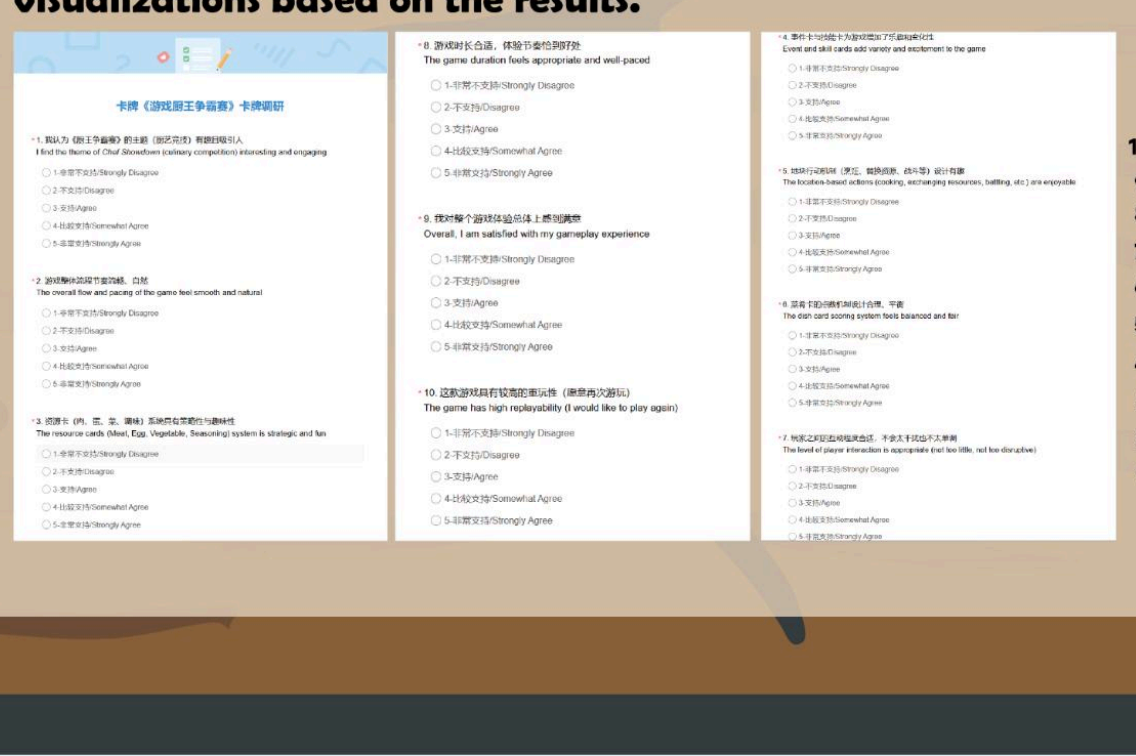
After completing the game and printing the physical cards, I invited my friends to play-test it and provide suggestions for improvement.

I created ten questions as a survey to collect players' evaluations of my game, and I produced data visualizations based on the results.



1. I find the theme of Chef Showdown (culinary competition) interesting and engaging
2. The overall flow and pacing of the game feel smooth and natural
3. The resource cards (Meat, Egg, Vegetable, Seasoning) system is strategic and fun
4. Event and skill cards add variety and excitement to the game
5. The location-based actions (cooking, exchanging resources, battling, etc.) are enjoyable
6. The dish card scoring system feels balanced and fair
7. The level of player interaction is appropriate (not too little, not too disruptive)
8. The game duration feels appropriate and well-paced
9. Overall, I am satisfied with my gameplay experience
10. The game has high replayability (I would like to play again)

FEEDBACK

Players reported that some of the game cards were unbalanced. They felt the game's playability was moderate, but the game design was interesting, and the resource card concepts were also appealing.

FUTURE PROSPECTS

In the future, Chef Showdown will focus on improving rule clarity and balancing the battle mechanics, while continuing to expand the variety of dishes and skill cards to enhance replayability. We also plan to explore new modes, such as cooperative or alternative gameplay options, to further enrich the game's strategy and overall enjoyment.
